Godman predicts doom, then peace

By Swati Das

MADRAS, Sept 22
FROM November 11 this year, a holocaust like no other will ravage this earth. It will rage on till 2005 AD.

There will be floods, famine, earthquakes, thunder and lightning (that will destroy all temples), mutinies, fires and hunger.

Man will eat man and crores of people will die.

This phase will continue till peace returns to the earth in 2005 AD just as it happened 5,000 years ago.

India, China and Japan will then emerge as powerful countries on whom 138 others will depend.

LOOKING AHEAD: Munivar

From November 11 this year, a holocaust like no other will ravage this earth. It will rage on till 2005 AD.

These are no idle ramblings of an addled mind. Instead, the prophecies are made with seriousness and conviction by a man who believes he is the avataar of god — Brahma, Vishnu and Maheswar — all in one.

They are the predictions of Yaghava Munivar, who also claims control over the forces of nature. This, he says, gives him command over two, ancient languages — Nam Yaghava and Starin Inanya — which were spoken 5,000 years ago.

The Ramayana and Mahabharat are lies. They are stories told by a foreigner and were converted into 'truth' by listeners.

The Ayodhya issue will create problems in the country. Communal strife will continue till 2005 AD, at which time there will be just one community.

There will be no stable government at the Centre, and Narasimha Rao will not last till then. In 1997, Priyanka Gandhi will ascend the gaddi and become prime minister.

In Tamil Nadu, K Karunanidhi will become chief minister and will be succeeded by P Chidambaram.

Puffing on a cigarette and wearing just a vesti and a cloth around his neck, 53-year-old Munivar sits in apparent tranquility in the sprawling courtyard of his residence. He might as well have been spouting poetry. Not the dark predictions that leave one quaking with fear.

He eats nothing but only sips water and, at times, coffee. He has had no formal education but the Tamil he speaks is scholarly and poetic. He claims he does not know how to sign his name. Except in the Inanya script.

"I am not 53 years old. I'm 5,000 years old. There was no religion then and peace reigned on earth. I know the language of the birds and I speak with them.

"The same conditions that prevailed 5,000 years ago will descend on earth 2005 AD. All evil on this earth will be destroyed," Munivar says, a smile dancing around the edges of his mouth.

One knows not whether to cheer at the prospect of predicted peace or dread the impending doom that Munivar says will precede it.

The Inanya language, Munivar says, has its roots in Pali. Preliminary research shows its sounds and sound pattern is akin to those of Sanskrit.

Born as Laxman, in Thirunelveli district of Tamil Nadu, Munivar tended cattle as a boy. He then found work as a woodcutter and later as a cook.

At the age of 15, he set off for Bombay, where he was employed for eight years in a shop in Chem-bur while residing in Matunga.

"One cannot just become a snya-bi or sage. Everyone has to go through hardship, marriage and responsibility. Only then does one become whole.

"I have never told lies and have always worked hard. Even now I live an ordinary life, earning my own living."

And what exactly does he do for a living? Munivar runs a real estate business in partnership with three others.

The prophet of doom has two sons and, though he and his wife live under the same roof, the couple do not share the same room.

The house is unique and built in-keeping with Munivar's system of belief. The domain comprises a hall, behind which there is a row of three rooms, followed by another row of three rooms. All the receptacles are bereft of furniture.

The epics are lies. They are stories told by a foreigner and were converted into 'truth' by listeners.

The configuration is supposed to represent Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva. The middle row in the last row, he says, is his samadhi, which has already been dug and ready for burial.

Munivar has set his date with death and insists that he be interred within 10 minutes of his demise.

His philosophy is based on dharma. Ones parents are ones only Gods. Hence, he who goes to the temple is being cheated, he expounds. One should never think of karma, he adds.

"If anyone commits a crime," Munivar continues, "I will kill them with the wind. No policeman can catch me," he quips, adding that he can 'see' everything with an invisible third eye on his forehead.

Munivar is available for darshan only on Sundays, from 1 am to 2 pm. The rest of the week, he whizzes about on his two-wheeler, going about the business of everyday life.

Guardian angel?

A soothsayer claims to be the saviour of mankind

TAMIL NADU

India seems to have got her nith Nostradamus in Yaghava Munivar. The doomsday prophet has predicted holocausts and epidemics and has promised to be the saviour of humankind when such crises arrive. The prophet, a self-professed amalgamation of the Hindu triumvirate, Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva, will be going into seclusion from 11 November to carry out his task of "destroying karma and protecting dharma". Munivar claims to be 5,000 years of age and well into his 54th incarnation.

According to the Express Starteller, an astrological magazine from the Indian Express group, he had predicted the 30 September earthquake in Maharashtra on 21 September and hinted at the colossal destruction that would occur.

Born Laxmana Nalar in Ammanpuzham village in southern Tamil Nadu, he had done various odd jobs, before settling up his own business as a rice merchant and a real estate broker. It was around this time that he started attracting devotees with his predictions. "I have brought down to this world 111 munis, who will carry out my task of destroying karma and protecting dharma," he says. While his cohorts are at it, the prophet will undergo astral travel, even as his own body lies inside his ashram in Medavakkam, a suburb of Madras.

Sitting in a sprawling courtyard, the 54-year-old muni is of medium height and dressed in a dhoti with a white towel thrown over his bare torso. His words come in a torrent of colloquial Tamil, interspersed with chaste Tamil poetry and occasional swear words. He often lapses into quotations in a strange language, which he says is Inanya, a language more than 5,000 years old and the progenitor of Pali and Prakrit which in turn begat Sanskrit.

He does not believe in performing miracles and is contemptuous of the godmen who claim they do. The very mention of Sathya Sai Baba brings out from him the choicest swear words in Tamil. "There is only one genuine jnani and that is the Paramacharya (the centenarian Chandrashekharendra Saraswati of Kanchi Kamakoti Peetam). All others are thieves and frauds," he says.

But his devotees are convinced that he can perform miracles. D.C. Mangalraj, a brick kiln owner, says he had come to seek the Munivar's blessings before his wife was to go for surgery to remove a cancerous tumour from her stomach. "The Munivar told me to go home as no surgery will be necessary. Miraculously, the next day, a repeat scan showed that the tumour had disappeared." Since then, Mangalraj and his family have stopped going to church. Other devotees also claim that the Munivar has solved their problems, or cured diseases by merely giving them a few drops of plain tap water or a one-rupee coin.

But these are only for the privileged few. For everybody else, he has only one thing to offer — the prized advice to eschew karma and embrace dharma. "Man in his arrogance is fighting over religion. But during the next 14 years, the religions will destroy each other. After the year 2007, there will be only one religion — the religion of spirituality, the religion of dharma," he says. "By that time, India, China and Japan will become the 'mother countries' and will feed the entire world. By the end of this century Rajiv Gandhi's daughter Priyanka will emerge as the leader, who will lead not only India but also the world to the new era of peace and dharma."

Closer home, Tamil Nadu's grand era will be ushered in under the leadership of (former Union minister) P. Chidambaram. But north India will see a lot of death and destruction, for, "that is where a lot of munis and jnanis were killed".

Not inclined to modesty, he says, "I control all forces of nature. The entire world is in my palm." He displays an orange-tinged palm. Every time a disaster is imminent, his palm turns black and emits the stench of charred flesh.

Till the 111 munis complete their task of destroying the present order and ushering in the new era of dharma around 2007, Yaghava will attain samadhi. He has instructed his followers to bury him within ten minutes of attaining samadhi and has chosen the site for burial.

But he will face an acid test later this month as he has predicted an unprecedented flood in Madras. •

PREDICTING DOOM: Yaghava Munivar

'5,000-yr-old' sage spells doom for India

FROM G.C. SHEKHAR

'ON NOV. 11 MUNIS WILL DESCEND TO FIGHT EVIL'

Madras, Nov. 9: He predicted the Maharashtra earthquake a week before it came and even on the previous night, specified that the morning would be filled with death.

"My word became true and this is only the beginning. For the next 14 years the world will only see disaster of massive proportion. Once that tragic spell is over, India, China and Japan will emerge as providers of this world," predicts the man, called by his followers as Yagava Munivar.

Munivar in Tamil means sage but the man does not believe in the title. "I am just Yagava, a combination of Shiva, Vishnu and Brahma, and I do not care what title these people give me," he goes on.

Yagava claims to be 5,000 years old, speaks a language that is 5,000 years old, converses with birds and even controls the forces of nature. He reels out a string of prophecies — that Priyanka Gandhi would become Prime Minister, which would be a golden period in India, former Union minister P. Chidambaram will usher in a golden era in Tamil Nadu and North India would face a long spell of upheavals.

The sage speaks in Inanya, considered to be a precursor to Sanskrit. He claims that the Aadhi Vedas, that were believed to have been burnt by rakshasas (demons), were written in this language. The language sounds like Sanskrit though there are fewer words to it. The sage alone is able to translate it to Tamil.

Unlike other soothsayers, Yagava does not sport a beard of don saffron robes. He is comfortable with his dhotti, a small white towel around his chest and cigarettes. Living in a spacious house in a Madras suburb, Yagava claims that he has not eaten any food for many years. "I survive on water, coffee and cigarettes." Strangely, there is no trace of the cigarette's aroma in the room as he puffs away at it.

How does he predict disasters? He spreads his palm, pointing out its brownish-orange hue. "Whenever that turns red, there have been calamities.

Before the earthquake, even a burning stench emanated from it. "Only after this did he say that thousands would die," said Nandini, a neighbour who also works as Yagava's stenographer.

Yagava does not always predict doom. In 1978, he had told Mrs Soundara Kailasam that her son-in-law, Mr P. Chidambaram, then a lawyer, would become a Union minister. She refused to believe him then but later returned in 1985 to acknowledge his vision when Mr Chidambaram joined the Rajiv

Gandhi Cabinet.

Yagava does not promise anything to or take money from his believers. "People come here to tell me their problems and I only advise them that if their karma is good, they have nothing to fear. If they insist that I give them something, I ask them to drink water from that tap and present me a one rupee coin."

But believers say that his miracles have worked. A brick-kiln owner, Mangalraj, recalls his experience when a cancerous tumour was discovered in his wife's stomach. "We came to take his blessings before the day of the surgery. The sage said no surgery would be required and suggested that we take another scan. The tumour did not appear in the second scan. I have since stopped going to church. Now he is our only God," said Mangalraj.

When asked how he felt about being called a godman, Yagava flew into a rage. "Except for the senior Sankaracharya of the Kanchi Mutt, all other godmen are thieves. They're robbing and cheating people with magic. We'll have to pay for all this when 111 munis will descend on earth after November 11 to destroy the evil. This process will end only in 2005," he rattled off.

Yagava has already told his followers that he would become a recluse from November 11. And in 2005, he would attain samadhi when his remains would be buried in a pre-determined room in his house.

Yagava predicts that from 2007 there shall be only one dharma in the world based on "athma gnanam" (sans religion). India would provide this spiritual gift to the world.

Some say that Yagava is a descendant of the Siddhars, sages endowed with enormous powers to perform miracles and cure illness, while others see him as the Kalki avatar. He speaks in colloquial Tamil with the occasional swear word. Suddenly, he bursts into beautiful chaste Tamil poems to drive home a point.

Yagava could hold fort with any Vedic scholar while discussing his brand of metaphysics which his followers are compiling for a library of video recordings.

In 1982, he addressed a congress of Vedic scholars in Madras, replying to the toughest queries. Many scholars admit that Yagava might have the key to the lost Aadhi Vedas, says Mr Govindaraja, a chartered accountant who is recording the pronouncements of the sage for posterity.

Yagava, in Inanya, means air, water and stars. Deriving powers from these, Yagava claims he is capable of out-of-body travel to another body or another place. For an unschooled boy, who used to graze cattle, work as a hotel cleaner and a cook, Yagava does pack in a lot of wisdom.

But only time can tell if his predictions are true. On November 30, when floods have been predicted in water-starved Madras, we will know if Yagava Munivar is really a sage or yet another smooth-talking, self-styled sham.

An unlikely prophet

MADRAS, Sept. 3.

He is an unlikely prophet, if one goes by appearance. Wearing a traditional dhoti, with close-cropped hair, trimmed moustache and clean-shaven face, Yahava Munivar is in his mid-fifties. His words, which are sharp and clear, though mystifying, come in torrents. He predicts death and destruction for sinners.

Sitting in a sprawling open compound in the suburb of Medavakkam, Munivar spoke in Tamil about a future where the earth — which he calls cosmic Hell — will experience unrest, calamity and catastrophe for 14 years from November 11.

He says he is the 'Munivar' for all Munivars, and can clear all doubts on the Vedas. He claims inner vision through a 'third eye' on his forehead.

He has had no formal education, but has codified what he calls is an unknown language, called Inanya, and encourages research into it. It appears to have its basis in Pali.

Munivar's message, in brief: turmoil will be experienced in the world from November 11. It will be a time when people can strike gold, but rains will fail and natural calamities will take a heavy toll of human life. 'Temples will lose their strength' he says profoundly. In the coming century, the world leaders will be India, China and Japan.

If the prophecies of the Munivar seem to be in the realm of mysticism, he has some down-to-earth predictions as well. In his view, Rajiv Gandhi's daughter Priyanka is all set to take over the Central Government by 1997.

Munivar invites questions and answers them while he smokes a cigarette. Though many people seek his advice and blessings, he does not have any regular meetings with the public. A few who went to him with problems claim to have been cured, without any formal rituals.

Some of his predictions, such as those on earthquakes and rains, are based on 'spots and lines' appearing from time to time on his palms. His followers say he had warned of earth tremors, which were later experienced in Maharashtra recently.

Hailing from Ammanpuram in Nellore Kattabomman district, Munivar started life working in a shop at Matunga, Bombay.

Munivar says he will go into seclusion from November 11.

Mystic predicts cataclysms

From Our Staff Reporter

MADRAS, Dec. 29.

The mystic from suburban Medavakkam, Yahava Munivar, has come out with a fresh set of prophecies for the world at large — he says he has unleashed an astounding number of 111 crore sages and 111 spies in the world, who will purge all evil.

The 'unusual prophet' with close cropped hair and rustic manners told presspersons here that he landed the sages and spies on November 11 last year and it was a 'session of sages' on the same date this year. He said he would cause a devastating cataclysm after 5 a.m. on December 28, 1994.

The work of those whom he had pressed into action would be felt increasingly in the world, as it reels under various forms of cataclysms.

Yahava has already been widely reported prophesying famine, ruin for Governments, death and destruction from extreme natural calamities.

In 1993, he had announced that he would go into seclusion from November 11 of that year. Asked why he was still in the glare of publicity, Yahava replied that he had assumed a third birth for his destined role. By 2005 there would be only one universal religion.

In his two-hour long animated discussion with the press and others at a posh hotel, the mystic foresaw victory for the Congress(I). Rajiv Gandhi's children Priyanka and Rahul would be Prime Minister and President of the country.

Mr. P. Chidambaram, the former Minister, would lead Tamil Nadu, and Messrs. G. K. Moopanar, M. Arunachalam and K. V. Thangabalu would wield power.

Some members of the Congress(I), the writer, Mr. Valampuri John and Mr. Kumaradas, MLA were among those present.

The enigmatic Munivar

THE HINDU
18-3-94

Yaghava Munivar's utterances and predictions have created a wave of interest. K. Venkatasubramanian writes about this unusual personality.

Medavakkam in the suburbs of Madras is a small sleepy village. In a middle income group house here lives Yaghava Munivar his, wife and two sons. The "Cigarette Samiyar" as he is fondly referred to by his neighbours has created a wave by his utterances and shattering predictions. His predictions are really serious and quite a few devotees say that what he says really happens.

They look upon this mystic personality with awe and wonder. The life of the Munivar, his ways, his mode of speech and the very design of his house are strange. The configuration of his concrete house is really mystifying. The house apart from a big hall has two rows of seven rooms. He uses two rooms and the other rooms are for the Siva, Vishnu and Brahma and their consorts Durga, Lakshmi and Saraswathi. The Munivar has announced publicly that on March 3, 2007 he will shed his mortal coils.

According to him, Dhana Munivar, Dhava Munivar and Dharga Munivar with their consorts Vasiya, Nunuva, Yanya control the destiny of the world. This trio perhaps are akin to the Greek Ceres, Juno and Vesta.

What about Munivar's predictions? Days before the Maharashtra earthquake and floods which ravaged Tamil Nadu he spoke about them. He told a set of college students that before any calamity, his palms turn blood red or have dark spots and even a burnt stench comes from them.

These parameters add a mysterious "halo" to this very strange phenomenon who claims that his soul is 5000 years old and that the present is his 54th Janma.

Yaghava is absolutely unlettered. He cannot read or write Tamil though he speaks forcefully in Tamil. But he speaks, reads and writes Inanya considered to be older and more ancient than even Sanskrit. Though it sounds in its rhythm and style very similar to Sanskrit Yaghava claims it is the Mother of Sanskrit with 1011 words. He is positive that the Vedas were originally written in Inanya. Each sentence in this mystic Inanya would extend to 18 pages if translated in Tamil, it is stated.

Another mystifying and startling fact is that Yaghava Munivar who does not know even a single alphabet delivers feverish addresses which are faithfully recorded on tapes.

The small time rice merchant and petty real estate agent (he makes a living from these) claims that he is there to save the world and has given startling political predictions too, like Priyanka Gandhi becoming Prime Minister, after about a decade.

One of his most telling predictions in the 5,000 year old Inanya language is "Uvaya Uvanava ugraha" meaning a total holocaust.

Muni predicts City will have floods

MADRAS - While Madras City is anxiously awaiting the monsoon, Yaghava Muni of Velachery has predicted "floods for Madras City shortly".

Utter chaos will prevail throughout the world from Nov 11, 1993 to 2005 A.D., destroying all evil forces, for which 111 crore munis have descended to the earth in flying saucers, he says. The end of this period will see India, China and Japan emerging as superior countries, ruling the world. There will be only one religion.

Communal strife will increase, littering the roads with dead bodies. Man will eat man as grains will not be available. New diseases, natural calamities, hurricanes, famine, and starvation will be the order of the day during this period.

On the political front, he predicts Priyanka Gandhi will become the Prime Minister by 1997.

In Tamil Nadu he says "P Chidambaram will become its Chief Minister after Karunanidhi". •ENS

Doomsday predictions draw the faithful

By SAM RAJAPPA
reporting from Madras

Appearances can be deceptive. Yaghava Munivar, the latest rage among godmen, does not sport a flowing beard. Nor does he drape himself in flowing saffron robes. His close-cropped hair-do, trimmed moustache and traditional dhoti and angavastram would make him pass off as a kirana merchant. Savants and sages flock to him. On Thursday (Nov 11), he goes into seclusion and will stop giving religious discourses or darshan for the next 14 years. A loner in the firmament of godmen, he never encourages devotees or disciples and shuns VIPs. Yet, they flock to him.

Four days before the devastating earthquake struck Latur in Maharashtra, the Munivar spoke of the impending disaster with uncanny accuracy to a local newspaper baroness who sought his audience. When this correspondent, a sceptic, visited him in his secluded abode on the outskirts of the city, he spoke of a fire about to devour the homes of the rich on the west coast of America. The California fires proved him right.

Modesty is not one of his virtues. He claims to be the Munivar of all Munivars who could clear doubts on the Vedas. His 'inner vision' is supposed to come from a third eye on his forehead which is not visible to the naked eyes of ordinary mortals like this

A man with no formal education, the Munivar has developed his own language and script called Inanya which he says was in vogue 5000 years ago and has its roots in Pali. On June 27, he wrote three lines in Inanya forecasting total holocaust on earth in the next 14 years, beginning November 11. As no one can decipher the script, one has to take his word for what the writing says.

At the end of it all, India will emerge, along with China and Japan, as the leading power and the so-called first world countries of today would be dependent on the 'big three'.

Closer home, the Munivar foresees an abrupt end to the AIADMK Government of Ms. Jayalalitha in Tamil Nadu, a period of political instability at the Centre, followed by Ms. Priyanka Gandhi taking over as Prime Minister in 1997.

Born of humble parents at Ammanpuram on the banks of the Thamprabarni in Tirunelveli district on March 2, 1942, the Munivar began life as a cow herder. He then made a living as wood cutter. At the age of 15, he went to Bombay and worked as a shop assistant for eight years. Married with two children, he says everyone has to go through hardship, marriage and responsibility. Only, then does one become whole.

Though the Munivar lives in the same compound as that of his wife and two sons, he has his own quarters and has little in common with them. Except for the occasional cups of coffee and regular supply of cigarettes provided by the family, he has been living on air and water for the last 25 years. Any solid food would induce instant vomiting, he says.

The Munivar says he represents the trinity — creator, protector and destroyer (Brahma, Vishnu and Mahesh). He had taken his 54th birth to quell evils. Neighbours say he talks to the birds and the bees. But people around find it difficult to comprehend his teachings.

Among his predictions of interest to the people of the country are that the Bharatiya Janata Party would never come to power at the Centre and that no Ram temple or Babri Masjid would be built in Ayodhya.

During the last 5,000 years, Munis, Mayas and Gnanis had been conquered by Arakkas, Asuras, Thadayas and Rakshasas. With the purpose of avenging them, the Yaghava Munivar descended on earth in his 54th janma. And he had promised to kill karma. The believers are waiting to witness it.

LUMINARIES

His name is Kalki and he predicts disaster

It was a humid Tuesday. The shadows were lengthening. We reached rather a lonely place with high expectations. We were with him for an hour or so. Yet it is a puzzle whether we have seen the God, Demi or even God Man.

He was fluent in his Tamil, speak even Hindi and quick witted. In fact for every question he has a ready-made answer.

He is not an astrologer, not a palmist, not a numerologist or an expert in any branch of the famous astrology. Then who is he?

According to him he is the Avatar of Kaliyuga, the present day Kalki. He had many births, to be exact 54 spread over 5,000 years.

Yaghava Munivar, as he is called, says he is the creator, protector and also the destroyer, all in one (Brahma, Vishnu, Maheswaran).

("Listen to me. Do not treat me as a fiction, not a fanciful triviality. Celestial worlds, numbering III are there in the universe and human being live there also in my domain".)

Till 5,000 years ago the primordial world remained calm, peaceful and well. Then the Asura thandava (Dance of Evils) started and everything went topsy-turvy. To quell and annihilate the evils "I took my 54th Birth"

And the latest of these birth was on 2nd March, 1942 at 9.30 a.m. at Tirunelveli. He stands about 5'6" or 5'7" stockily built with a healthy look. He courts a border mustache, and is almost a chain smoker. He doesn't take any food except, coffee and water.

The neighbours say that he has the power to talk to the birds. In the morning Garuda, the "Vahan" of Lord Vishnu comes and hovers around his head and remains there till he is asked to go. Like that many birds came.

It is said that he has the power to leave the "body" in the room where he is supposed to sleep in the night, (Astral travel) and goes to other worlds, heaven to see things. Till he returns the angels will look after his body.

His childhood was very hard. Though he, according to him, had the same divine power, he 'suffered' a lot. He was a beggar in his early life and then became a shepherd, then was a servant in a small shop in Bombay, slowly he started his rice mandy business. He looks affluent now. Has a wife & two sons.

He always visualises only the universe only and his utterances are about it only. He says that he completely stopped the power of black magic nearly 12 years ago. No body can use it with a semblance of power on result now. When there is a deluge, flood or rain havoc his palm becomes black and he immediately predicts the effect of it. Likewise if there is going to be an earthquake (in fact he predicted one in the next one week in upper India) or the like, he gets two black spots in his palm. That is the reason why he could warn the people of the disaster.

He doesn't know how to read or write. But he records all his utterances with the help of a college girl who is his neighbour. She also confirms the "Predictions" of her "Appa".

What he has said earlier on is part of history now. However, he says that the water problem of Madras will be over by October when there will be a devastating flood in the city.

His Prediction:-

Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) will never come to power at the centre.

He painted a gloomy picture from 11.11.93 for the world, with particular reference to India. There will be disintegration of many countries which are strong now.

Civil War, communal violence, riots and chaos will be the order in the whole world. In fact one may act like their ancestors of 5,000 years ago, man eating man. Many new diseases may engulf the human beings. The disaster will continue till 2005 A.D.

No Rama temple or Masjid will be built in Ayodhya. Political instability till 1999.

Then a Joan of Arc will appear in the horizon - Priyanka Gandhi. She will become the Prime Minister in that year and will slowly but steadily rebuild India into one of the three super powers of the world. The other two are China & Japan. The whole world will be fed and looked after by these three countries.

It will be topsy-turvy to the world. Many heads may roll. But India will be stronger.

So keep your fingers crossed from October onwards when the city faces a deluge. The first test in the September 30 tremor.

K.K. NAIR

When we met him on Tuesday the September 21st, he predicted an earthquake. But when we met him again on the following Friday, he was assertive that the magnitude and destruction will be much more than what we generally think.

Perhaps by the time this article sees the light of the day, Madras City would have experienced the flood havoc also.
